United Launch Alliance Supports Science Programs at the Children's Museum of Denver

Denver, CO— The United Launch Alliance is sponsoring the Super Science Sunday Programming during the month of April at the Children's Museum of Denver. United Launch Alliance also supported the science-based programming in February and will continue that support in August and November of this year. The funding is part of a collaborative partnership between the two organizations focusing on bringing science, mathematics and physics to the forefront of early childhood education.

Super Science Sunday is one of many of the daily educational programs at the Museum. It is a weekly session that focuses entirely on science and mathematical skills. Samples of Super Science Sunday programming include: Sock it to me Rocket to me, Blast-o-Butter, Use Your Illusion, Our Magic Bodies, and Up, Up and Away.

About the United Launch Alliance

Formed in 2006, ULA combines the successful Delta and Atlas expendable launch vehicle programs to offer cost-effective and reliable launch services to U.S. government customers, including the Department of Defense, NASA, the National Reconnaissance Office and other organizations. ULA program management, engineering, test and mission support functions are headquartered in Denver, Colo. Manufacturing, assembly and integration operations are located at Decatur, Ala., Harlingen, Tex. and San Diego, Calif. Launch operations are located at Cape Canaveral Air Force Station, Fla., and at Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.

About the Children’s Museum of Denver

Since its inception in 1973, the Children’s Museum of Denver has been a place that ignites and fosters a great love of learning. Our mission is to create a community where children and their grownups learn through play.

The Museum provides rich play experiences and a dynamic learning environment to help young children prepare for their future. The Children's Museum of Denver is a nonprofit 501(c)(3) organization that relies heavily on the support of Museum friends.

The Children’s Museum of Denver is located at I-25 and 23rd Avenue (exit 211), in the Platte River Valley. For more details about the Museum, and its programs and events please visit www.mychildsmuseum.org.
